All ex-presidents of the road will be present except Josiah Perham, who designed the road and died in 1868 before a shovelful of dirt had been dug for its construction. The other ex-presidents are ex-Governor J Gregory Smith of Vermont, General George W Cass of New York, J H Wright of Philadelphia and Fred Billings of New York. A number of prominent English and German guests, public men and journalists will arrive on August 26th to join the party. Opposition Telegraph Company Incorporated.

CHICAGO, August 2—[Special.]—A certificate of incorporation of the [illegible] Exchange Telegraph Company was filed in the county clerk's office yesterday. The incorporators are Charles D Field, of Yonkers, Charles S Hand of Madison, Alex. Thain of East Ninety first street, I Bentley of East Seventy-ninth street and James C Jewett of William street. The right to increase the capital is reserved. Each of the incorporators has 100 shares of stock. Alexander Thain said last night that $21,000 had already been pledged by merchants, especially by persons in the grain business. Wires to Chicago were expected to be in operation by January 1. Some of the best telegraph patents in the country have been secured. Thain said the company intended to build a line and operate it as a business enterprise, but that it was not for sale.

Whitelaw Reid Interviewed.

CHICAGO, August 2.—A morning paper publishes an interview with Whitelaw Reid of the New York Tribune, relative to the appointment of Stanley Matthews to the supreme bench. Mr Reid gives emphatic denial to the whole story. Following is the interview: The reporter said he had been sent to ask Mr. Reid concerning Dorsey's statement about the alleged bargain which Dorsey said Reid probably knew about, the appointment of Stanley Matthews to the supreme bench. Reid replied: I never made any such bargains with General Garfield, directly or indirectly, and have no reason to think any such bargains were made by anybody else. I never even asked him for an appointment for Matthews, nor did I know that Matthews was to be appointed until after his rejection by the senate.

An Extensive Failure.

NEW YORK, Aug 2.—The Boston Journal says F T and B D Phinney, boot and shoe manufacturers have suspended. Liabilities, something over $400,000. They are on Shaw Bros' paper for $400,000.

BANGOR, Me., Aug 2.—It is stated that the Nova Scotia bank of Woodstock, [illegible] is heavily involved by the failure of Shaw & Bros. The bank of St. Stephen is also a heavy loser. It is said the above banks hold the paper of Shaw & Bros. to the extent of $300,000 each. In the north [illegible] a feeling of uneasiness. In some cases men who had [illegible] for peeling bark have endorsed Shaw Bros paper to raise money to carry out contracts.

It was arranged that the committee should leave this city Friday for St. Paul and proceed from that point to the Crow agency and thence go to Helena, Montana, where it will be divided into subcommittees, and visit all the reservations in that section of the country.

The United States transported nothing by steam from this port. The lion's share belonged to England, which carried in the neighborhood of two thirds each year. Belgium comes next. Last year corn formed less than one-half of the exports of grain, while this year it is fully one-half. Wheat formed last year two-thirds of all but this year a little more than one half.

Some of the delegations will sail on the steamer E[illegible] on the 15th. It is authoritatively stated that the entire expenses of German guests from the time of their departure to their return, are to be defrayed by the Northern Pacific.

New York Freight Market.

NEW YORK, Aug 2.—[Special.]—The California clipper freight market remains quiet and firm owing to a scarcity of tonnage. The Roswell is the leading vessel, and is doing fairly. The will be followed by the S R Mead, now in berth. Ship St Nicholas has taken load for San Francisco. An Accession to the Fleet.

From the Seattle Chronicle.

It will be remembered that the iron steamship Costa Rica was bought some time since by the Villard people. She is a twelve-year old [illegible] capable of carrying 1800 tons of freight, and is a propeller and until a short time ago engaged in the southern trade. She had splendid accommodations for 125 people when new. The entire upper works and a part possibly all of her machinery will be replaced by new work. She will be put on the upper coast trade—between San Francisco and Seattle. She will be a freight and passenger boat and will be an accession to the fleet now doing business in these waters.

An enricher of the blood and purifier of the system, cures lassitude and lack of energy, such is Brown's Iron Bitters.

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR.

Crowds Throng the Railroad to Catch a Glimpse of the Party

On board the President's train, Salem, Ind., 9 40 A. M.—The special containing President Arthur and his party pulled out of the Louisville and Chicago depot at Louisville half an hour late, and after crossing the long bridge which spans the Ohio river at Jeffersonville quickened its pace along the foothills of southern Indiana. The leave-taking which the President had of Louisville was in a measure, informal although a great concourse had congregated in and about the depot. The train is decked out in royal fashion. The transit of the special had accidentally been well advertised, as was evident by the great crowds along the entire route. Every crossing had its quota of spectators and rail fences on the outskirts of villages in the lower portion of the state were liberally decorated with natives. Owing to the delay in starting, no stops were made after leaving New Albany until Salem was reached and the train passed through all intermediate villages at a flying rush. No place appeared so modest that it failed to possess a piece of ordnance and the accompanying cheering of the assembled crowds was as loud as the detonation of the artillery. The president throughout the early portion of the run sought seclusion in his coach and failed to make appearance on the platform. Accompanying calls for the president at nearly every station a disposition was evidenced by the crowd to look at Secretary Gresham, and these were repeated, and hearty calls for that gentleman. It had been originally intended to make a short stay at all the leading stations, but owing to the delay in getting out of Louisville, and a desire to reach Chicago on time that plan was abandoned. Chicago will be reached at [illegible] o'clock this evening. It is now contemplated that a stay of half an hour will be made at Mount Vernon, where special trains from Indianapolis and other northern Indiana cities will bring crowds to view the president's party.

ACCIDENTS.

DEATH FROM A TRAIN COLLISION.

BOSTON, Aug 2.—A special to the Journal from Newport, Vermont, says an express train on the Southeastern railroad from here to Montreal was derailed, three miles from North Troy, and the whole train wrecked. Two parlor cars, one baggage and a passenger car, and a new engine were made a complete wreck. A lady from Derby was fatally injured. Some fourteen others were seriously hurt. Fred Tierce of Stanstead and servant were badly hurt. Some of the injured were brought here and others were taken to Newport Centre and North Troy. This is the most severe accident of the kind that ever occurred in this vicinity. Everything is being done by the railroad company for the sufferers. There were fifty passengers aboard.

NEWPORT, August 2.—Fifteen or more passengers were injured by the accident on the Southeastern road yesterday, two or three perhaps fatally. The accident occurred at a slight curve, the rails probably spreading by the weight of the engine.

THE WRECK CLEARED AWAY

[illegible], N. Y., August 2.—The wreck of the colliding freight trains on the Troy and Boston road, near North Pownal yesterday was cleared to-day and the bodies believed to be those of Mark Sutherland, engineer, H. H. Bruce, operator, and Charles Madden, engineer, were found burned frightfully. The remaining three bodies are still missing and it is believed have been reduced to ashes. Loss, $60,000.

THE ISCHIA HORROR

Another Shock of Earthquake—The King Visits the Ruins.

LONDON, Aug 1.—Latest advices from Casamicciola say that a number of English and Americans have arrived here in search of friends and relatives, supposed to be victims of the calamity. An American lady reports her aunt missing and it is feared she was buried in the ruins. One family was rescued after being twenty six hours entombed. The Syndic states that 1,000 are dead at Lacco, 1,000 at Forio and 2,300 at Casamicciola. The damage to property is two million lire.

NAPLES, August 2.—King Humbert has decided that search for the victims of the earthquake shall continue. Six persons were exhumed to-day. Another shock was felt this afternoon. No damage was done. Owing to the efforts from decomposition of the remains all but soldiers have ceased searching. Several persons have been arrested at Ischia for plundering corpses.

King Humbert yesterday visited the scene of the earthquake at Ischia and went over the ruins of the destroyed towns. He expressed the deepest sympathy with the sufferers and ordered a distribution of money and provisions to those in need. Another severe shock of earthquake was felt on the island last evening which put a stop to the work of searching the ruins for bodies of the victims. It is believed some living under falling buildings at the time of the earthquake are still alive in the ruins and the use of lime on the ruins is therefore postponed.

CAPTURE OF THE MONTANA ROAD AGENTS.

News Notes from Pendleton—Railroad Notes—A Midday Robbery in San Francisco—Etc

Change in the Mail Service for the Northwest.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 2.—[Special.]—Arrangements are about completed for expediting the delivery of eastern mails intended for eastern Oregon and southeastern Washington territory. Heretofore those mails have been dispatched from Kelton, on the line of the Central Pacific railroad, to Boise City by stage. It is proposed on August 15 to send them via the Oregon Short Line from Granger, Wyoming to Shoshone, making a saving of something over 100 miles. The mails thus forwarded will be principally for Baker and Union counties and also for Walla Walla, and this arrangement will hold good until the completion of the Northern Pacific when all Oregon, Washington territory and British Columbia mail will be made up in the east and sent over that road. On the above date mail matter from here will be sent to Ogden, and thence on the Utah Northern to Pocatello, then on the Oregon Short Line to Shoshone, from where they will be taken by stage to Boise City and finally to Baker City, making a considerable saving in time. On such days as steamers leave here for Portland mail intended for the northwest will be carried over that route.

Bold and Fatal Robbery.

A bold attempt at robbery, concealed up to the present time in the hope of capturing the robbers, has just been made known. Last Monday Mrs. Ma[illegible] Hyman of 417 Mason street on re-entering her house, was caught by the throat by one of three robbers, and thrown on the floor and requested to state where she kept her money. The pressure of the robber's knee on her breast, and his hold upon her neck rendered her unconscious, but the robber increased the pressure on her throat and breast with such force that the tongue and eyes protruded from the head. When found she presented a terrible spectacle. After ransacking the furniture and rooms all that the robbers found were $6 in silver, a $5 piece and a gold specimen worth about $15. This occurred at midday on one of the most frequented streets in the city.

Railroad Notes.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company are going to open an independent office in this city.

It is reported that Thomas Potter, now general manager of the Burlington and Quincy road, has been appointed general manager of the Northern Pacific road.

The Union Pacific have opened an office for freight business on Montgomery street.

The war in passenger rates waxes warm and an open rupture may be looked for at any moment.

Arms for the Chinese Government.

Large quantities of ammunition for the Chinese government has arrived by the steamer San Juan just in from Panama. Officials are extremely reticent on the matter, but inquiry learned that the vessel brought 300 boxes No. 45 United States government cartridges, each box containing 1000, also 5000 Springfield rifles. They are consigned to C Smith, Shanghai, China, and will be re-shipped on the steamer Rio Janeiro.

Protest Against a Reduction.

At a meeting of the railroad commissioners to-day a communication was received from A. N. Towne and J. C. Stubbs on behalf of the Central Pacific railroad, protesting against a reduction of freight rates. The writers object to specific reductions, on the ground of no well founded complaints on the present rates, which are not burdensome to producers.

Dodging Taxation.

The value of the franchise of the Alaska Commercial Company was recently increased by the assessor from $115,000 to $1,000,000 and the company had to pay taxes on the latter amount. They did so but under protest and now state having no remedy against such injustice, it will be obliged to remove its business from this city and state to some other point on the coast equally convenient to its operations.

Had Friends in Paris.

A movement is under way to obtain the release of Dr. Chalfant from San Quentin prison. It will be remembered that Chalfant, a dentist, was convicted of having killed Bacon in the Baldwin hotel some three years ago. A number of dentists in Paris, France, have been interesting themselves in his behalf, and it is [illegible] due to enlivening sympathy.

Opinion of an Indiana Congressman.

Congressman Calkins of Indiana, now in this city, and who is regarded as a probable republican nominee for governor of his state, remarked last evening that political measures ought to be taken at the earliest moment to check the power of those immense monopoly corporations that were coming up in [illegible] the country.

A man by the name of Richard Haskins, who was digging a well on Mr. Wilson's farm near Heltz, while being drawn up to escape poisonous gas, fell from the bucket, injuring himself so that he died in a few minutes.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Public Debt Statement for July.

WASHINGTON, Aug 2.—The clerk for the committee of ways and means has furnished the following analysis of the public debt statement for July. The close of the first month of the new fiscal year shows a reduction in the public debt since July 1 of $9,000,000 in round numbers. This reduction, however, is [illegible] in a sense that the obligations to the amount named have been discharged, and the debt columns show no real change worth noticing since the beginning of the month. The reduction is produced by the payment of about $3,000,000 of accrued interest and an increase of about $5,000,000 available cash balance, which is now $155,[illegible]. The treasury has now nearly $183,000,000 in gold coin and gold bullion, an increase during the month of nearly $1,000,000 against the gold fund there is outstanding $[illegible] gold certificates, an increase of $231,000 for the month. The accumulation of standard silver dollars in the treasury goes steadily forward, the number of these pieces now held being over 114,000,000, against which there is outstanding nearly $[illegible] silver certificates. Of 2,300,000 silver dollars coined in July one half went into the treasury. Including $[illegible] of fractional currency, the weight of silver coin now in the treasury is 50[illegible]. The receipts of money compared with those for July 1882 show a falling off of over $1,[illegible] 000. This loss is mainly in internal revenue receipts which the operation of the new tax law by which the tobacco tax has been reduced one half and certain other taxes abolished, will explain. In the customs receipts there was an increase over last July of nearly $1,000,000, caused by a reduction of duties on merchandise which was held in bond until after July 1 in order to secure the benefit of reduced rates under the new tariff act.

Dangerous Wool.

WASHINGTON, August 2.—The assistant treasurer has received a letter from a prominent firm in New York calling attention to the fact that large quantities of wool of a low grade are exported from Egypt, Syria and countries in their vicinity to this country, which is the principal market for it, besides a considerable quantity of bed wools extracted from old mattresses from Constantinople and these wools are now more frequently shipped for this country. In view of the epidemic raging in eastern Mediterranean countries, these wools might convey infection as well as rags.

Mint Notes.

WASHINGTON, August 2.—The coinage at the mints for July was $5,139,600, of which $4,425,700 were standard dollars. The treasury department has purchased 450,000 ounces of silver for delivery at the mints of Philadelphia, San Francisco and New Orleans.

A Turtle as Large as a House.

Toledo Telegram.

Captain Augustus G. Hall and the crew of the schooner Annie L. Hall vouch for the following: On March 30th, while on the Grand Bank in latitude 40 leg. [illegible] longitude 53 deg, they discovered an immense live trunk turtle which was at first thought to be a vessel bottom up. The schooner passed within twenty-five feet of the monster and those on board had ample opportunity to measure its dimensions by a comparison with the length of the schooner. The turtle was at least forty feet long and fifteen feet wide from the apex of the back to the bottom of the under shell. The flippers were twenty feet long. It was not deemed advisable to attempt its capture.

A WITTY CUSTOMER

Went into a drug store and asked for SOZODONT. The store keeper said, "We're out of that, but here is something just as good." The practical customer said, "I'll call on the next drug store," and walked out to a neighboring store and got a bottle of SOZODONT.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Meeting of the National Association—An Earnest Endorsement of Arthur

PROVIDENCE, Aug 1.—The national civil service reform association met here to-day. Rev. Chas. Wendell, of the local reform association and pastor of the Channing memorial church, opened the proceedings and gave a hearty welcome to the association.

George William Curtis then delivered the annual address. In the course of his speech Curtis said the efficiency of the Pendleton bill depended at the beginning wholly upon the good faith of the president. Had he desired to discredit and defeat its purpose he had only to appoint an unfriendly commission, but the selection as the first members of the commissioners of one of the ablest sincerest and most devoted friends of reform, Dorman B. Eaton of New York, and the association with him of Dr. Gregory of Illinois and Judge Thurman of Ohio, was conclusively an earnest of the president's desire to give the reform system fair play. This is the more significant because the president's previous course and his faith in the spoils system as essential to party organization had excited great apprehension that he would use his vast patronage in a manner to increase and aggravate the evils of that system, but this apprehension has not been justified. In certain cases, indeed, and especially in the removal of a [illegible] naval officer of New York, one of the most efficient and experienced officers in the public service, there was a flagrant disregard of the essential principle of reform, but the manner in which this disregard was veiled was an apparent desire to promote the interests of reform, and was of itself evidence of the president's consciousness of public expectation that able and capable officers shall not be removed under the plea of expiration of their terms. But on the other hand the president's steady refusal to satisfy the faction of his party which demands that public patronage shall be prostituted to factional interest is most honorable to the chief magistrate. Whatever exception may be justly taken to the policy of the administration in regard to the appointments and removals, it will not be denied by any member of every party that the president, whose accession by means of a most tragical event was generally regarded as a misfortune and calamity, has not only allayed all apprehension of a gross misuse of the patronage of the government, but by his patience and temperate administration he has gained the general approval of the country.

At a business meeting after the oration Curtis was unanimously re-elected president.

Hitchcock of St. Louis presented a resolution that it the opinion of the league, it is indispensable to the complete civil service reform that congress should repeal the act of May 15, 1820, and acts supplementary thereto now embodied in section 7[illegible], 1864, 2217, [illegible] and 3840 of the revised statutes, by which the term of administrative officers was fixed at four years for the purpose and with the effect of permitting presidential vacancies in said offices to be filled by the appointing power. The resolution denounces rotation in office as foreign alike to republican principles and to round business method, and advocates as a most urgent step towards reform a return to the early practice of the government, under which fidelity and good behavior of public servants, as in the case of private agents, was made the sole condition of continuance of their employment.

A resolution was adopted favoring the application of the principles of the Pendleton bill to civil service of the states and cities of this country. Adjourned.

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS.

Proceedings of the State Convention—The Platform

HARRISBURG, Aug 1.—In the afternoon the democratic state convention reassembled. Robert James, as permanent president. On taking the chair James paid a high and eloquent tribute to the democratic party which he issued, with the instrument to redeem the state from the iniquity in which it has fallen years past. Nominations for Auditor-General were as follows: Wm. Hays Grier of Lancaster, John Eiwan of Allegheny, George W. Guss[illegible], Chester; Jacob Zeigler of Butler, Robert McCoohrea of Cumberland, Robert Taggart of Warren, J. K. Duff of Allegheny, J. S. Brown of Elk, [illegible] of [illegible], Jefferson, William S. Hirt of Philadelphia, J. J. McKernan of Armstrong. On the third ballot Robert Taggart of Warren was nominated by a vote of 164.

Nominees for State Treasurer. [illegible] of [illegible]; Reynolds, Bucks County; J. [illegible] Powell, [illegible]. M. Cool of Schuylkill. On the second ballot Powell was nominated receiving [illegible] votes. The nominees elected by the convention accepted the nominations in short speeches.

The platform adopted reaffirms the faith of the democratic of Pennsylvania in the true principles of their party and the sanctity of personal liberty and the rights of local self government, favors reform and far reaching civil service reform, always takes such taxation of the people as is requisite for the necessities of the government economically administered [illegible] the expenditures [illegible] and [illegible] and efficiency. [illegible] to [illegible] of the [illegible] the Republican party that the people should be taxed [illegible] [illegible] general government or distributed [illegible] existing surplus in the treasury [illegible] applied to the payment of [illegible] money not [illegible] government should retain [illegible] the people [illegible] the national abolition of the present system of [illegible] taxation, and as a measure of relief for the industry people from unnecessary and unequal burdens—the platform demands that the government should redeem all express and implied obligations as [illegible], [illegible] insists on the necessity of receiving [illegible] and [illegible] for actual settlers and [illegible] another score for corporations. The administration of Governor Pattison is heartily endorsed. He has vindicated the pledges of reform upon which he was elected and by his upright intelligence and courageous exercise of executive powers deserves the unqualified approbation of his party and the people of the commonwealth. The platform concludes with a series of ten resolutions commending the administration of Governor Pattison to the people of Pennsylvania endorsing the last session of the legislature and the abolition of a number of useless state offices.

After the adoption of the platform the convention adjourned sine die.

THE WHEAT CROP.

Synopsis of the July Report of the National Millers' Association

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 31.—The following is a synopsis of the July report to the National Millers Association made public in this city to-day: In Minnesota the wheat acreage [illegible] now [illegible] against 35,592,000 last year. Since May 15 the decrease of the outturn reported there has been a decrease in the favorable outlook of about 5 per cent. In that state, and the outturn of wheat is now estimated at 31,000,000. In Illinois there is a decrease in acreage of 20 per cent by reason of damage and plowing up. The report puts the yield at 4 per cent, of 18 [illegible], 536,000 bushels. In Indiana there has a slight increase in acreage [illegible] to wheat but with more than the plowed up, and the greatly increased acreage by unfavorable weather [illegible] last year's crop [illegible] 1,000,000 bushels. From Iowa the reports of the same acreage as May 15 [illegible] 10 per cent of 1883, which indicates a crop of 17,800,000 bushels. Kansas shows a decrease of 10 per cent in the acreage owing to plowing up, but the last reports there have greatly improved and a yield of 25,000,000 bushels can safely be predicted. In Michigan there is a reduction in acreage with the general [illegible] as at the last report in quantity and yield. Estimates there made still [illegible] indicating a crop of 20 per cent as compared with 1882, equal to 21,000,000 bushels. In Ohio [illegible] per cent of the acreage has been plowed up and the estimated yield of 55 per cent of that of 1882, would indicate a yield in this state of 22,250,000 bushels.

In Missouri [illegible] per cent of the acreage has been plowed up and the yield will not exceed 70 per cent of 1882 of 17,[illegible] bushels. In Wisconsin the condition and outlook of the crop are equally favorable with the May report, which indicated a crop of 1,800,000 bushels for 1883. With an increase in acreage of 30 per cent reported May 15 and a reduced prospect as compared with that date by reason of hot dry winds California is likely to produce 42,[illegible] or [illegible] per cent less than indicated by the previous report. In West Virginia the yield is slightly deficient. In Maryland the quality of winter wheat is not so good but the yield is equal to the former estimate of [illegible] 000,000 bushels. In Texas wheat is being threshed too damp. The yield is about 25 bushels to the acre making a crop of 2,100,000 bushels. Threshing will be finished by August and one third will be sold before September. In Dakota the prospects for the crop of spring wheat have not been better in five years and an output of 18,000,000 bushels is predicted. Complaints come from the Northern Pacific country of drought which will decrease the yield there. In Virginia threshing has commenced and proves disappointing. Indications point to a crop of 8,380,000 bushels equal to that of 1882. In Nebraska there is the same acreage as last year with a prospect of improvement of at least 10 per cent over last year, which would indicate a yield of 16,500,000 bushels, mostly spring wheat.

In Kentucky the acreage is about the same as last year with the yield averaging according to present reports 65 per cent, which indicates a crop for 1883 of 11,200,000 bushels. In Tennessee there is a reduced acreage, some being plowed up and there being damage of at least 10 per cent since the last report which would indicate a crop for 1883 of [illegible] to exceed 10 per cent of 1882, or 6,280,000 bushels. In Pennsylvania there has been no change since the last report and indications are good for a crop of 21,300,000 bushels. In Georgia wheat is injured considerably by rust and a crop of only 3,000,000 bushels is expected. In New York there has been since May a reduction of 5 per cent in acreage, that much being plowed up. The condition is such as to warrant a prospect not to exceed the former estimate of 10,000,000 bushels.

The report concludes with the following words: "The shortage indicated by the May report was 93,000,000 bushels compared with the crop of 1882 as estimated by the United States agricultural department in the states mentioned. The present outlook in the same states indicates a shortage of 15,700,000 bushels."

No Longer a Question.

Druggists of high standing and eminent physicians certify to the pain-curing properties of St. Jacobs Oil. Its merits as the most wonderful cure is no longer questioned.

George Walling has leased his coal land near Wilholt's to Smith & C[illegible] of Portland, for twenty years. Ten cents a ton being paid Mr. Walling for all coal mined. [illegible] Dobbins will [illegible] immediately prospect [illegible] to ascertain the quality of the coal.

LUNDBORG'S PERFUMES,

A FEW FAMOUS IRISH DUELS

Stories of Curran, Lord Norbury, Pat Power and Other Irish Fighters

New York Sun.

During the days of the old parliament in College Green, Dublin, violent altercations leading to the wire of frequent occurrence. Leaders of fashion, able ladies as at the Spain [illegible] fights thronged the galleries to applaud and encourage the[illegible]. Grattan was a capital shot and gave up many hours to practice, as O'Connell admitted that he did himself in early life. Paragraphs and pistols were Grattan's daily employment near Lucan where he first lived. Caesar's character of Brutus, "Quid, quod vult, valde vult," which an eminent western scholar translated "What he wants he wants like ———" applied to Grattan in everything—in hitting a mark or a sharpening a sarcasm, in satirizing the Treasury bench or shooting down a minister.

Curran, whose humor was perfect, and never deserted him even on such occasions, was once challenged by a barrister named Burrowes, supposed to be an incurable invalid. When they met Curran's second came to him and said: "The second of your antagonist requests as his principal is in a very feeble condition, that he may be allowed to support himself against the milestone where he is standing during the change of shots." "Certainly," said Curran, with a twinkle of the eye, "provided I am allowed to lean against the next milestone."

Hutchinson, the provost of Trinity college, who himself fought a duel with Doyle, a master in chancery, in which three shots were exchanged, said when a pupil asked his advice about a course of legal study, "Buy a case of pistols, learn the use of them, and they will get you on faster than Fearne or Blackstone."

It was a favorite boast of the infamous Lord Norbury that he began life with a £50 note and a brace of hair trigger pistols. The last were the only stock he brought to the bench. When here he once checked a learned brother by the signal that he [illegible] a judge he had not [illegible] to be a gentleman. Lord Norbury made good use of his pistols, or "barkers," as they were called in Ireland. He was repeatedly out, one of his duels being with Fighting Fitzgerald, whose so-called antagonist Martin of Galway had tried by wit [illegible] to [illegible] and firing two balls at him saying: "[illegible] neither of those either you [illegible] a murderer, and who was afterward hanged for a murder not according to the code."

Of course, the ordinary luck of the [illegible] gentlemen followed their leaders and many pleasant stories are told round Irish firesides of the professional duelists of those days. One of the most famous was Pat Power of Daragle. He was, we are told, like Bruce a fat robust man, and was distinguished for his intemperance and his glowing face. Among many of his affairs of honor was one with another fire eater of his time Bill Briscoe. When taking aim, he said he had still a warm friendship and a natural tenderness for such a gentleman—"of liquor, and would show it so he only shot off Briscoe's whiskers and [illegible]." When traveling in England, Power had many encounters with people who were attracted by his brogue and clumsy appearance. On one occasion he ordered supper in a coffeeroom and while waiting for it read the newspaper. After some time the waiter laid two covers, dishes on the table and when Power examined the contents he found there were two dishes of smoking potatoes. He asked the waiter to whom he was indebted for such fare. The waiter pointed to two gentlemen in the opposite box.

Power desired his servant to attend him and directing him in Irish what to do, quietly supped off the potatoes to the great amusement of the English men. Presently his servant appeared with two covered dishes, one of which he laid down before his master and the other before the gentlemen in the opposite box. When the covers were removed there was found in each a case of loaded pistols. Power took up his and coolly asked, telling one of the others to take up the second, assuring him that they were at a very pleasant distance for a close shot and if one fell he was ready to give satisfaction to the other. The parties rushed out without waiting for a second and the [illegible] and with them several persons soon, an adjoining box. As they were all in too great a hurry to pay their reckoning Power paid it for them along with his own.

In Ireland the duel ended in a death [illegible] some few years ago even in Galway, the home of Daly and Dick Martin where the custom had found its last footing. There a true [illegible] is found by the granting against one of the principals in a duel in which the other was killed. Yet in the same county but a quarter of a century before a judge of Assizes[illegible] charging a jury in a similar case said: "It is my duty to tell you, gentlemen, that the law of the land makes it a [illegible] crime. At the same time it is my duty to state and I feel pleasure in stating that from the interesting details of [illegible] witnesses I have never heard of a fairer [illegible] than this to which I have been a party to or witness in my life."

A DANSEUSE'S ROMANCE

After Fifteen Years' Absence her Sweetheart Returns and Marries her.

Fifteen years ago Maggie Summerfield, a very pretty girl was connected with Mrs. Drew's Arch street theater as a ballet dancer, as was her sister. Both attained great reputations and were known in the city as the "[illegible] country." Maggie Summerfield was always a favorite. Both girls were respected for their many virtues and their friends in the troupe were numerous. Among Maggie's suitors was a young man who was the senior member of a prominent firm of manufacturers of chandeliers and gas fixtures of this city. He paid her constant attention until it became known that the young people were engaged to be married. The young man's family objected to the match. Hearing this, the family stood firm and the young man was frustrated. Their next move was to remove him abroad. They believed he would in a passing fancy that might be obliterated by travel. The disconsolate young man was sent to China. But before starting on his enforced journey, he saw his sweetheart and they exchanged vows of constancy. The young man spent fifteen years in China and made a fortune of $100,000.

A month ago Miss Summerfield concluded her season with the Kiralfy Brothers company and came to Philadelphia to spend the summer. Her old lover returned to Philadelphia last week, married Miss Summerfield and they are now at the sea shore.

Badly Managed Receivership.

Chicago Herald.

It is evident that John R. Bensley does not understand the proper mode of conducting a receivership. He has utterly failed in almost no months ago a large failure, which he entirely settled in about five weeks. Learning nothing from this experience, about a month ago he took charge of the assets of McGeoch, Everingham & Co., with liabilities aggregating somewhere about $7,000,000. Of this about $1,400,000 was unsecured. He procured the acceptance of the firm's offer to settle for, about 30 cents on the dollar and has now completed his job, paid over the money and closed the thing up within thirty days. The total expenses were about $20,000, or not quite 1 per cent upon the amount of money paid over. When we compare this with the usual and natural way in which professional receivers settle bankrupt estates the extent of Mr. Bensley's ignorance is manifest. It is true that the unfortunate creditors and debtors greatly admire such a prompt way of working, but what of their interests beside the maintenance of a proper professional spirit according to the standard set by other receivers? Mr. Bensley is evidently not familiar [illegible]. He supposed it was his business to [illegible] is the estate as quickly as possible. This is [illegible] done. But if he had consulted with any of the receivers of the broken banks, or taken competent advice he would have learned that it was his business to receive the money and hold on to it and by legal proceedings oblige him to divide it among him[illegible] until whereby a deserving professional would have got till his work and merchants [illegible] taught the lesson not to give credit [illegible]. As for Mr. Bensley, it is that he ought to be a court especially prepared to [illegible] in solvent estates summarily, that of course [illegible] do at all. Where would the receiver come in? Where the lawyers? Whom would it benefit besides the debtor and his creditors? The idea is contrary to every healthy instinct of a receiver.

Emperor William's Debt to General Sheridan

San Francisco Call.

The statement has been made several times of late that General Phil Sheridan was the means of saving the life of William during the Franco-German war. How this was done is a mystery to many readers. It must be remembered that General Sheridan went abroad to take observations of the war, to note everything connected with it so far as he had the opportunity, so that if he discovered anything new he could avail himself of the information to great [illegible] afforded to our war department. He was allowed by military courtesy to attach himself as a looker on to the staff of the Emperor William, of which Count Bismarck was a member. At the battle of Gravelotte, he sat on horseback near the emperor on a knoll, and with his eagle eye detected that while the emperor and his staff had overlooked that the French lines were advancing through the woods and a movement against the royal party. He gave the alarm and on the instant there was a simple [illegible] a piece of greater safety. An hour afterward it is related, a shell burst on the very spot where the emperor and his staff had occupied. It was not that the emperor, [illegible] that [illegible] General Sheridan's [illegible] perceptive in [illegible] that [illegible] the [illegible] and thus it was the story got out that he had saved the life of the emperor William.

Gail Hamilton.

Mrs. Abigail Dodge (Gail Hamilton) has made Washington her winter quarters, [illegible] because she is a cousin of ex-Senator Blaine, [illegible] uses his house her home, says a Washington correspondent of the Indianapolis Journal. Her literary work is too well known to need a mention here and the lady herself is too little known [illegible]. Say much about her personality. She is a plain brown-eyed lady of the most uninteresting type as truly great-hearted people usually are. Of the much maligned class the spinster she furnishes another proof of the advantage gained by women of talent in choosing a single life. If Gail had married we might never have had her matchless disquisition on the art of rearing children published in Harper's Bazar several years ago, which like the newspaper receipt reads better than it looks. She did not even take Miss Glass' production and advice. Her estimation [illegible] a woman's [illegible]. It has been jealously whispered by [illegible] that Miss Dodge is better in dabbling in politics, and that the honorable ex-senator and ex-secretary is not slow to avail himself of her aid in the line in which Miss Dodge furnishes proof also of another truth—this time a very kind suspicion of my own—viz., that woman, though always relegated to the post of second fiddle is often a Cremona.

Silver City Avalanche: Martin Eisler was seriously hurt on Wednesday last by his team jumping off of the Scotch Bob grade on the Sinker Creek road near what is known as the Nigger cabin. He had his shoulder dislocated and his head and face considerably bruised. He was found by Mr. Gilmore at about 7 o'clock P. M. of that day lying by the roadside disabled. He was at once placed in Mr. Gilmore's wagon and brought to town where Dr. Belknap set his shoulder and dressed the wounds. The horses, strange to say, were not hurt, but the wagon was mashed into pieces. Mr. Eisler is now getting along comfortably.

"OTHER" TILLAMOOK.

PORTLAND, August 1.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I read with great pleasure, the highly complimentary report of a letter from Tillamook, glad that at last a writer has been found to do justice to that isolated county. Heretofore the name of Tillamook has, in a measure, been only a synonym for hard work and poor people. Its object is [illegible] that at last one comes to the front as the richest dairy country on the coast, whose mountains [illegible] drivers from north to south, are always [illegible] the pecked beauties [illegible] Nestucca. She only, as yet a young settlement, a fact [illegible] to notice with her [illegible] equaled in Oregon for its producing qualities. When the same improvement has been placed, her [illegible] vessels for [illegible] production [illegible].

The Big [illegible] of [illegible] said to be navigable for fourteen miles when clear of a few log drifts, and the bay is alive with [illegible] salmon in the fall season. Land has already been purchased on the bay for a cannery and [illegible]. The bay is reached easily by water and [illegible]. The Little Nestucca [illegible] through [illegible] to go [illegible] you near the [illegible] perfect the roadway to the [illegible] winding through the richest grass land—[illegible] and, which [illegible] is prairie. The tide water [illegible] of its tide water [illegible] [illegible] of tons of splendid hay [illegible] Portland market, really at [illegible] to the Columbia, wild grass hay. With [illegible] sufficient to start the trade to Portland [illegible] in a few words and a fine dairy country and delightful and secluded summer resort [illegible] protected by the cool winds that are on the beach [illegible] other more noted places. Land is worth from [illegible] to [illegible] per acre in little Nestucca. Her hills are bold ridges of native clover stretching [illegible] toward Salmon river, and her ravines are full of [illegible] timber. On the beach are two fresh water lakes, one of which is most admirable for boating and [illegible] camping places. The bay is a quarter of a mile wide, or more at high tide and has an outlet to the ocean with a 12 foot bar, so near as can be computed. With steam power it can be entered at high tide [illegible] all the year round.

During the summer months [illegible] out to sea, and when the Indians were taken to Salmon river they were taken to that reservation about twelve miles down the coast. That part of Salmon river north of the mountain [illegible] range for stock, and in the mountains are fine ranges, especially along the old trail to [illegible] Nestucca. There are creeks in abundance. The [illegible] burnt off and grass [illegible] grown to splendid pasturage. The Nestucca people expect that their bar could not be surveyed [illegible] for steam communication. There is a need for sufficient means by some enterprising party to build a hotel for the benefit of visitors, as then Nestucca will loom up [illegible] mighty Pacific as the most delightful spot for the [illegible] worn and heat [illegible] of the city of the west and her surroundings are of [illegible] magnified. A few years and the narrow gauge will be running to the reservation from Sheridan. Then only twenty-two miles will separate the Nestucca from the wider civilization. The early tide [illegible] on the coast for a railroad is to be found down the little Nestucca river.

IRELAND'S ENTERPRISES.

Revelations of a Fenian—The National League.

CHICAGO, July 27.—A cable special from London says: The Nineteenth Century for August contains an article of the history of great interest to the American readers and [illegible] importance to the future compiler [illegible] the Fenian [illegible] tell some of the things which no better hand [illegible] other man knows of the rise of the Fenian uprising, of the methods of its organization, of its [illegible] and its hidden purposes, its growth and its collapse. A [illegible] provided which will review the results of a visit of the Irish League, Parnell and the [illegible] and the [illegible] of various societies into the national league concluding with [illegible] of the possible future of [illegible] and the [illegible] revolutionary movement. THE NATIONAL LEAGUE.

The executive committee of the Irish national league has fixed upon Dublin as the place for holding the next annual convention. The convention will be held during the last week of September. It is intended to have it [illegible] and [illegible] public meeting to be presided over by Parnell. The main purpose of the convention will be to decide upon the course to be followed by the Irish party throughout Ireland [illegible] at the next general election. Parnell is at present engaged in the preparation of a manifesto to Irishmen which he will issue during the coming recess. It will urge Irishmen to form [illegible] in the interim [illegible] and organize for such political activity during the next election as will enable the league to represent [illegible] in Parliament. Parnell believes that the next election will leave the English parties about evenly divided in the commons and [illegible] to the Irish members the absolute balance of power. He says that if the national league will canvass all Ireland as they did Monaghan and Wexford the Irish representation in the next parliament will be large enough to control, by combination, all the legislation of the session.

STEAMERS ON PUGET SOUND.

From the P[illegible] Intelligencer

Messrs. W. D. Scott & Co. of this city have purchased the steamer [illegible] of Mr. Roger, and will hereafter run her on the route between Seattle and Nooksack, touching at the various intermediate points. In reply to a question as to the reasons for the purchase, a member of the firm replied: "Our business was now assumed such proportions that it is absolutely necessary for us to have a steamer constantly under control. The Nooksack valley is very fertile and is being rapidly settled up and we will do everything in our power to accommodate those who are thus settling up and building up its fertile section. Hereafter the [illegible] will have headquarters in Seattle."

A FISHING TUG.

The tug Quickstep, belonging to James Williams of the Columbia river, arrived here yesterday from Astoria, having made the run from the bar to Port Townsend in twenty two and one half hours. The Quickstep is a propeller, 60 feet long and 16 feet beam and has two cylinders [illegible] [illegible] making her a fast boat. She was built in San Francisco by A. J. Ralston, for his private pleasure yacht, but she was lately found herself in the salmon carrying trade on the Columbia. Mr. Williams, her owner, has started a little enterprise between the old town of Tacoma and Point Defiance and the Quickstep brought [illegible] machinery and other appliances needed in the [illegible] fish. The tug will probably run in connection with this fishery. She was brought around by Captain Dolg, the pilot who lost the [illegible] on the Columbia river bar and will be commanded by the bound by Captain Harper.

The story of a Wicked Town

From the Alexandria Gazette

Perhaps one of the prettiest spots in this or any other state is the old and dilapidated village of Hopewell, situated at the base of the Bull Run mountains embracing some 300 acres known as the Hopewell Valley, surrounded on all sides by lofty eminences and pyramids of stone. The fertility of this valley is proverbial. Divided among many small farmers each cultivating for himself a sturdy independence. Thirty years ago this village boasted of stores, mills, tanneries, factories and hotels, and various hundreds of thousand. To-day scarcely one stone remains to denote or mark her former splendor. But in the midst of its beautiful nature has lavished every charm. Invalids of towers stand in every direction while the flying spray from the falling cascades gives to them a [illegible] of perfume and a fresh supply of appearance surpassing description. This only contributes its low [illegible]—like unto that of Sodom and Gomorrah—to the wickedness of its inhabitants. No stranger who visited this field [illegible] its [illegible] or pass its confines, so lawless were its people. Nothing now remains of this. Four years of civil strife swept Hopewell as clean as Hercules did the Augean stables.

SUBMARINE WARFARE.

Certain new devices, of which some account has recently been given, portend another change in naval warfare. Of Ericsson's "Destroyer" we had recently an extended account. It is a vessel whose guns send loaded projectiles through the water, which explode with tremendous force upon striking the vessel aimed at. The "Destroyer" is almost wholly under water, and therefore nearly assured of immunity from the object of its attack.

Still another scheme is that proposed by the "United States Submarine Monitor Company," of San Francisco. As our civil war changed all theories of naval construction showing in the contest between the Monitor and the Merrimack that the day of wooden ships had passed, so now it is proposed to show that a new method of naval defense is entirely practicable, doing away with the necessity for costly ships and constituting a complete protection of our harbors against the naval powers of the world. The common torpedo is a practical failure because it can seldom be exploded in the right place beneath a vessel. It is mere accident when one is made effective. To apply motive power to torpedoes and rightly direct them so that they may be exploded with effect, is a problem which has long engaged the thoughts of inventors. But it has not yet proven successful. A new idea is to construct a submarine boat, no part of it visible above the water by means of which workmen may gain access to the bottom of a ship or floating battery which they may undertake to destroy—fix a torpedo to the vessel's bottom, withdraw to a safe distance and explode it by an electric current. It is claimed that this can now actually be done.

Recent discoveries in the generation, management and use of electricity supply the means of submarine navigation, so long desired. The electric motor is an established fact. It has been demonstrated that electricity may be stored, transported from place to place and used as required. Mr. Brush is now storing and selling it to customers in New York, using storage batteries. Thus electricity can be drawn upon at will, as a person draws beer from a keg, and according to the kind of apparatus it is fed to, it produces light or motive power. This wonderful discovery is now being put to practical use. Steamships across the Atlantic have been lighted by electricity brought on board in boxes, and it is proposed to deliver it to houses, as milk is delivered, to furnish power for any purpose. It has also been put to more severe tests and a steamer has been built in London which is run entirely by stored electricity. Motive power can thus be cheaply generated by steam, stored in convenient packages, and packed away in convenient places for use.

It is claimed that a boat may be driven under water, with this power, and make no sign upon the surface. It would move noiselessly, could be steered easily and with certainty and made to take an upward or downward course in the water by a horizontal rudder at either end. The mariner's compass would enable the boat to keep her direction upon a horizontal plane, and ability to cause the boat to sink to any desired depth and keep it may be given by a glass tube to measure the pressure of the water. For air supply, compressed air is taken and stored in suitable receptacles, sufficient to supply the three or four men who operate the contrivance, as long as may be necessary. Again, in ordinary circumstances, fresh air can be secured by means of an iron pipe lying on the top or back of the boat which may be raised to a perpendicular position by a simple gearing, the bottom of the pipe coming over a valved opening leading to the interior of the boat. The projection of a small pipe a foot or two above the surface of the water would scarcely be perceived even at a short distance. A double air pump would bring in fresh and expel the vitiated air at the same time.

When the boat is under way the captain stands in a compartment built upon its top, giving him an unobstructed view in all directions. He is clothed in submarine armor, and air is supplied to him through tubing leading to the interior of the boat. He communicates to the helmsman by means of a telephone. Upon the captain devolves the duty of directing the boat and fixing the torpedo. Clamps attach the instrument of destruction to the keel of the vessel; the boat sinks and steps away, reeling out the wire connected with the torpedo attached to the ship, and when a safe distance is reached an electric current is sent through the wires which produces an explosion whose work is as effective as that of dynamite can be.

The company organized in San Francisco for construction of these torpedo boats have secured patents, and announce their readiness to prove to the world that a new era in naval warfare is about to be introduced. They may not succeed; and yet schemes that seemed far less practicable upon their first presentation have more than fulfilled the claims of sanguine inventors.

TIMBER FRAUDS AND THE LAND LAWS.

The extraordinary demand for saw-logs has made the sharpers who for years have preyed upon government timber unusually alert and even less scrupulous in their methods than formerly. The timber ranges within reach of the Columbia river have been particularly the prey of rogues this year. Not content with taking whole tracts under the law, which is loose enough to admit of legal gobbling on a wholesale plan, they have employed every possible scheme of dishonesty to get hold of thousands of acres. We have information from the northern part of Columbia county that, in a single finely timbered locality twenty thousand acres have been filed upon and secured by flagrant perjury as to its character and the purposes of purchase. A region which offered many attractions for settlement has been taken bodily by speculators at the trifling government rate to the utter exclusion of immigration. Not only is the government being defrauded of property of great value, but the settlement and development of the country is being delayed. In remodeling the land laws, provision should be made for care of inspection by experts of every tract taken, so that fraud would be impossible no matter how willing the purchaser to swear to a lie. Recently THE OREGONIAN said that the government should adopt the land system of the railroad companies, namely that of classifying lands with careful reference to its character and value, with a fixed price upon each grade. Certain parties, evidently not understanding the suggestion, have objected to this on the ground that the best policy of the government is to give settlers cheap lands. We believe in the policy of cheap lands, but we do not believe in absolutely giving them away. People who are worth having as settlers can afford to buy land, on easy terms of payment of course, at something in the neighborhood of what it is worth. The railroad companies whose plans were approved have even a greater interest than the government in having their lands settled, for every thrifty settler within their traffic field adds to their business, and they have adopted the plan which, while attracting settlers, secures the best class. But it is the timber which would be best protected by a proper classification of lands. Timber lands are sought, not by settlers who develop the country but by speculators who take from it. They cut down the forests and ship them away, and the country gets but little benefit from the transaction. The lands or the timber upon them ought to be rated at full market value. [illegible] no reason to be in a hurry about get- [illegible] for

O'DONNELL'S FRIENDSHIP FOR CAREY.

There can no longer be a doubt that Carey, who acted as informer in the Phoenix park murder cases, has been shot down at Cape Town while enjoying (if such a word may be permitted) the protection of the British crown and the police system, which extends over all its colonial dependencies. The same dispatches conveying the intelligence of his assassination also bring the news that great rejoicing over his taking off has been held in Dublin, Cork, Waterford and other cities of Ireland and a grave doubt arises in the mind of the unprejudiced reader as to whether the violent removal of such a personage is really a fit subject for rejoicing on the part of his enemies.

If ever a wanton and brutal crime was committed under the shallow pretense of a political exigency, that crime was the assassination of the Earl of Cavendish and Secretary Burke. If ever villainy of the coarsest type was aggregated for a single purpose into an association as thoroughly disciplined as any mining or manufacturing corporation, having its deadly object in view for weeks and watching every footstep of the doomed men, it was in the association formed for the purpose of killing those two unfortunate officials. The man who shoots down his fellow man in the heat of an angry dispute, as was done in this city a few nights ago, is an angel of mercy beside the ghoul who contemplates his bleeding victim for weeks before the fatal blow is struck. And when a number of men become banded together for a fell purpose like this, the brutality of the crime becomes aggravated tenfold.

James Carey was a full participant, as an accessory before the fact, in this cruel and cowardly act. He walked, with open eyes and hands untied, into as dastardly a plot to commit the worst of crimes as was ever conceived within the hearts of savage ruffians, upon whom the surroundings of the most refined city in the United Kingdom had exerted no softening influence. When the terrible blow was struck and the Christian Sabbath desecrated by as foul and revolting a murder as had been committed since "the primal eldest curse" had been hurled at Cain from the lips of Omnipotence, the civilized world stood aghast at the shock. For months the perpetrators of this hellish crime remained undiscovered until James Carey gave the information which led to their arrest and subsequent execution. Whether it was the fear of detection and punishment, or the offer of a large reward for the betrayal of his associates, that prompted this action, the world will never know. All that is known, is that James Carey was a full accomplice in a crime, that he betrayed his partners in that crime and that he was subsequently killed like a dog for his treachery.

It is a grave doubt, however, whether killing such a man was as severe a punishment as letting him live. Sooner or later he was bound to suffer. Of course he got money for betraying his partners in guilt, but such money does not cleave to a man like money amassed by honest toil. Dissipation would be necessary to assuage the qualms of conscience, and with the fumes of liquor the ill-gotten gold would soon take flight. And, then, with poverty staring him in the face, despised by the government that had used him as an informer and execrated by the masses of the people among whom he first saw the light, James Carey would have found no resting place on the wide earth, and would have realized that he had sunk so low as to be beneath the scorn of rogues and the contempt of thieves.

"Patriae quis exul se quoque fugit," wrote the sweetest of Latin bards; and in our day we repeat the question, "What exile from his country can fly from himself?" It fitted Carey's case exactly. He had left England and Ireland behind him, and sought seclusion in South Africa. His associates in crime and brutality were either dead or in prison, but his guilty conscience still followed him to the uttermost ends of the earth and shared his enforced exile. The government which had used him as a dirty tool, had cast him off as a loathsome thing and refused him a written pardon. With his furtive eye beholding retribution in every bush and his cowardly ear hearing sounds of menace where no danger could exist, it would have been impossible for him to run fast enough to escape his own fears. The worst torture such a man could suffer was to live; and the greatest boon that could be conferred upon him was a painless death, such as he met at Cape Town. And when O'Donnell comes to his senses, he will realize that he has proven himself Carey's best friend.

The Russian government has published the terms on which it has concluded peace with the Vatican, and some of these deserve attention, as they show how readily the Vatican yields in one country what it calls indispensable in a free country like ours. In all Roman Catholic seminaries in Russia the czar's government supervises especially the professors of Russian history and literature, and reserves the right of a general inspection. The teachers of these seminaries cannot qualify, save with the consent of the government. No bishopric can be established in Russia, save with the consent of the czar, who promises that gradually he will mitigate the exceptional laws which have been issued against his Roman Catholic subjects. The main point is, that the entire cause of Catholicism in Russia remains under the authority of the czar first and the pope after him. Between the two the freedom of the Russian Catholics will not be considerable.

An act of the legislature of Oregon, approved October 16, 1878, makes it unlawful to take, or fish for salmon in the Columbia river, or its tributaries, during the months of March, August and September, and further makes it unlawful under a heavy penalty to purchase salmon so unlawfully caught. (See session laws of 1878, page 12.) District Attorney Caples is in daily receipt of letters asking if this law is still in force, and he has answered that it is in full force, and that he will undertake to enforce it in every case where evidence can be obtained of its violation in Multnomah county.

The reputation of the Columbia river salmon has been injured greatly by the dishonesty of packers and merchants in putting Columbia river labels on inferior fish from other localities, and whole cargoes of inferior fish are sent to Europe each year without being branded, and there receive Columbia river labels. If our packers would unite together and put forth a little effort they might protect themselves from this fraud, which spoils the market for their goods.

Parcels of considerable bulk are now transmitted through the English mails. On the first of August the limit of weight of mailable packages was increased to seven pounds, the charge for which is one shilling. It will be seen that the British postoffice has gone more extensively into the business of carrying merchandise than ours has yet done. In this country the limit of weight is four pounds, and the range of mailable matter is much less than in the United Kingdom.

An old story, revamped, is told on Bonanza Mackay. He was asked if he traveled to Moscow incog. "Oh, bless you, no," said he, "we went in a sleeper." A. A. Cohen used to say that Charley Crocker of the Central Pacific railway, on his return from his tour of Europe, was asked if he had seen the Dardanelles. "Certainly," was the reply; "we dined with 'em at Vienna."

Press service, except to journals depending on the Pacific coast northern wires) has nowhere been materially reduced by the strike. The general manager of the associated press, three days after the strike was inaugurated, published a statement showing an actual increase during that period in the amount of matter transmitted for the associated press.

ATTORNEY'S FEES.

The following report of a decision upon this question by Mr. Justice Miller of the supreme court of the United States we clip from the Omaha Daily Republican of the 16th ult. The same question has been before Judge Deady in this district on several occasions.

The two cases of the American Mortgage company of Scotland (limited) vs. James Downing, came up for hearing before Justice Miller of the supreme court of the United States on motions to strike from the decrees the amounts allowed by the court as attorney's fees.

The motions were very ably argued by Hon. C. J. Phelps of Schuyler, on behalf of Downing, and Judge Hull and Hon. James M. Woolworth on behalf of the mortgage company.

The objections urged by Mr. Phelps to the allowance of attorney's fees were that the contract was entered into since the repeal of the so-called attorney fee law of Nebraska, and that the allowance of a stipulated fee would, first, render the contract usurious; second, destroy the negotiability of the note; third, be contrary to the decision of the supreme court of Nebraska in Dow vs. Updyke. He also urged upon the hearing that to allow attorney fees in federal court was contrary to the reported decision of District Judge Caldwell in Arkansas, in the case of the bank vs. Stevens, which opinion was concurred in by Circuit Judge McCrary.

The case was very thoroughly argued, and Mr. Justice Miller in rendering the decision remarked, that upon a full review of the authorities, he was satisfied that the repeal of the Nebraska statute left the question as though no statute had ever been passed, and that upon principle and authority it was clear that parties were fully competent to make their own contracts, and there was nothing in the policy of the law which forbade them to agree to pay costs and expenses, including attorney's fees, which they might cause the loaner of money by reason of their own default.

In no case cited was a satisfactory reason given why a provision in a mortgage to pay attorney fees should render the note non-negotiable, and it was absurd to say that it would render it usurious. Interest was allowed for the loan or forbearance of money, and it is quite evident when suit is begun to enforce the collection then forbearance ceases. The attorney fee is provided, not for use of money for a day, week, month or year, or any other time but is an incident to reimburse the loaner in recovering his own.

In the course of his opinion, Judge Miller remarked that he was and always had been a poor man, often a borrower, never a loaner: that his sympathies were with the borrowing class, but he believed that a contract fairly and understandingly entered into should be enforced, and that the one by whose default the expense was incurred should pay the bill.

Judge Dundy concurred, making the decision that of the circuit court of the United States for this district.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK.

Facilities for Getting There from the End of the Track—Points of Interest to be Visited.

For the information of those contemplating a trip to the Yellowstone park the following will no doubt be of interest:

At the present writing the National park branch of the Northern Pacific railroad is completed thirty miles south of Livingston, Montana, at which point a daily line of stages convey passengers immediately on arrival of passenger trains to the Mammoth hot springs, a distance of thirty miles. The Mammoth hot springs hotel is now ready to receive guests and provide for their wants in a first-class manner. A daily line of stages, consisting of wagons and coaches, run from the Mammoth hot spring hotel to Lower Geyser basin, a distance of 27 miles, thence to Upper Geyser basin, a distance of nine miles, returning to Lower Geyser basin; thence to Lake Outlet, a distance of twenty-five miles, thence to the Great falls, a distance of eighteen miles, returning to Middle Geyser basin, and from there back to the Mammoth hot springs, the terminal station of the National park branch of the Northern Pacific. The roads in the park are in fair condition, and as good as can be expected from the limited time given for improving them, and are perfectly safe at all times and places. The stage equipment is ample for the accommodation of all tourists and patrons this season. Saddle horses, ponies and guides can be obtained at Mammoth hot springs for a portion or whole of the trip, if parties desire. At Lower Geyser, Upper Geyser, Lake Outlet, Great falls and Half-way station dining and sleeping tents, sufficient to accommodate all tourists, are established with cooks and attendants. The sleeping tents are roomy and perfect protection from inclement weather, should there be any, though the weather in the park during the month of August and until about the 15th of September, is very pleasant. No rains nor storms break the even temperature, which is about 80 degrees.

With these facilities tourists will be amply provided for in accommodations, and cannot fail to enjoy the trip through the park, and will return greatly invigorated by the bracing atmosphere, and recuperated in health in consequence of the healthful exercise in visiting the various points of interest, which we may safely say are equaled no where on the continent in point of grandeur and scenic beauty. Visitors will feel that they have been amply repaid for their time and expenditure in visiting this great national wonder land.

The rates from the terminus of the Yellowstone branch of the Northern Pacific by the stage line are stated at 12 cents per mile.

REMINISCENCES OF CROOK.

The Prodigies of Warfare Never Before Known—His Pitt River Campaign.

Joaquin Miller in Philadelphia Press.

General Crook first came conspicuously to the front, at least in the estimation of the Pacific coast, as early as the spring of 1857, and in connection with the first great Pitt river war—a war that few ever heard of on this side of the Rocky mountains, I reckon; but it was a formidable war, and numbered its dead, on one side at least, by thousands, and had many a hero in its history besides the great general at the head of this paragraph.

The Indians had risen and massacred all the settlers in the great rich valley of Pitt river, lying under the majestic presence of Mount Shasta to the southeast and all Northern California for hundreds of miles around turned out in arms at the dreadful news.

General Crook was then stationed at Fort Jones, in Scott's valley, a land and locust not at all unlike the other great valley, but 200 miles away and quite on the other side of Mount Shasta. The volunteers were, of course first in the field, and had butchered about a thousand women and children, as well as a few warriors, before Crook with his regulars came around the great peak of snow through the pines and established something like discipline and a code of civilized warfare. Fort Crook was built at the head of Pitt River valley, the rough and bloody volunteers sent back to their respective mining camps, and Lieutenant Crook conducted the campaign vigorously, and alone with his handful of regular soldiers, and before long had an honorable and substantial treaty with the savages. To those not familiar with the geography of that land it may be important to know that he fought over the same ground, and in fact, fought the same Indians with his very few soldiers that held the now famous lava beds nearly twenty years later against nearly the whole army of the United States. He had but one company, and that, if I remember correctly, was less than half full. Besides that, it is safe to say that the Indians were at least fifty if not one hundred fold stronger numerically than when led by Captain Jack, chief of the Modocs.

So you can all understand that this young lieutenant did wonderful work and endeared himself to the Californians even before he had a beard. I, a mere lad, had taken part in the Pitt river war in the first lot of volunteers that built cabins upon the desolated valley after the massacre, and was subsequently employed as guide and interpreter for Crook. But, as my sympathy lay largely with the Indians and as I was only a stripling with but little practical sense, I was soon replaced by one of more judgment and experience.

Ten years later, and after his brilliant achievements of the civil war, this officer again appeared in the west and at my very door. He was a general now and in command of the department of Columbia, I believe, while I was officiating as judge of northern Oregon, and, with my one law-book and two six-shooters, was administering justice.

A little time before his arrival a new fort had been established near Harney lake, and named Fort Crook. With his characteristic modesty he changed the name of the fort from that of his own name to Camp Harney, although the old Fort Crook of Northern California had long since ceased to figure as a fort.

And just here I fall to wondering, as I often have wondered before, why it is that this great and good officer, after so many years of perilous service is to-day sent out to skirmish after and hunt down a few marauding robbers away out yonder on the remotest border line of the republic. And in this terribly hot weather too! It is enough to kill even the youngest and toughest, to say nothing of one worn out in long and incessant service. One wonders why he is not at the head of the army giving orders instead of receiving them. Ah, General George, modesty is a great merit, but not a profitable one in republics, with their traditional ingratitude.

I remember that the wife of General Crook, whom I occasionally met in Oregon while her husband was in command there was as popular and universally loved as her brave and unassuming husband. And that is to say that she was very popular, indeed. I never saw her again till we met a few months ago at Dr. Collyer's church. I found her the same delightful lady as of old when we worshipped the great snow peaks of Oregon together. She is, to say nothing of the nobility of her nature, one of the most magnificent ladies to look upon in all America.

A BRAGGART SOUTHERNER.

His Experience with Postmaster-General Gresham—Some "Choice" Language.

NEW YORK, July 27.—A Times Washington special says: Postmaster-General Gresham is coming to be known as an official to whom anyone may go with business and be assured of a courteous reception and polite attention, but office brokers are finding that it is a difficult matter to pull the wool over his eyes or to get him to do a thing merely for the asking. Colonel Jack Brown of Georgia, calling himself an attorney, has managed to get into print on account of a conversation held between himself and Judge Gresham on Wednesday which he has illustrated by extracts from an impertinent letter, said to have been sent to the postmaster general, but which Postmaster-General Gresham has not yet received. The Georgia colonel called upon Judge Gresham and presented a petition for the removal of the postmaster at Atlanta. It was signed "Jack Brown, attorney."

"This is a queer way of doing law business," said the postmaster-general. "Whom do you represent?"

"The republicans of Georgia," was the response. It appeared, however, that he represented them as a self-constituted attorney, did not live within 150 miles of Atlanta, and had no personal knowledge of the facts to which he directed attention. Judge Gresham then turned the statement during the conversation on the [illegible] his experience with southern republicans since he had been in office had compelled him to believe that they were a very curious lot. The colonel was not at all fierce, and after Judge Gresham had told him he would take the petition but would reply or not, as he saw fit, the colonel left. Later on he gave a reporter a copy of a letter which he said he had sent to Judge Gresham, in which he said: "Your dirty conduct with a gentleman of business qualifications intensifies the opinion that you are an ass and a bona fide Hoosier. An [illegible] innate respect for idiots, lunatics and dudes prevented me from slapping your jaws in our conversation yesterday when you expressed the Hoosier and contempt this [illegible] that all southern republicans were scoundrels. Had Grant or any other man for whom I entertained respect manifested the same spirit, I should have floored him on the spot."

The postmaster-general did not know to-day that he had been in any bodily danger during Brown's visit. It is said at the post-office department that Brown once threatened to drop Postmaster-General Maynard out of a window, because he declined to grant one of his requests, and that Maynard summoned a messenger and had Colonel Jack Brown instantly and ignominiously expelled from the building.

Lucy and Susan in Luck.

Worcester Spy.

The validity of the will of Mrs. Eliza F. Eddy of Boston has been confirmed, and property valued at $57,000 is to be divided equally between Susan B. Anthony and Lucy Stone Blackwell. Mrs. Eddy was the daughter of Francis Jackson. She died in 1882. Her will was filed and the probate court declared its validity, and this decision was appealed from. The matter was carried before the supreme court, and that body has recently affirmed the decision of the probate court. Mrs. Eddy left about $30,000 in her will, and, after numerous legacies to different persons, the following bequest appears: "Whatever is left after paying the above legacies I direct shall be divided into two equal portions. One of said portions I leave to Miss Susan B. Anthony of Rochester, New York, and the other portion I leave to Lucy Stone, wife of Henry B. Blackwell, as her own absolute separate property, free from any control by him. I request said Susan and Lucy to use said fund thus given to further what is called the woman's rights cause; but neither of them is under any legal responsibility to any one or any court to do so."

Mr. Oliver Myers, of Ironton, O., says: "Samaritan Nervine cured me of general debility."

THE WEEKLY OREGONIAN.

This great paper, issued to-day, excels all other papers of the northwest and, indeed, of the Pacific coast, in extent, variety and excellence of contents. It contains in its twelve large pages more than double the amount of matter printed by any other paper, all of it entirely fresh, and including news from all parts of the world. Local and northwestern news and topics receive special and extended treatment. This is not a mere weekly newspaper, but one of solid worth. Its excellence is attested by the fact that its circulation exceeds that of all other weekly newspapers published in Portland. For sale at the counter or supplied through agents everywhere.

CITY.

ABLY DEFENDED.—The case of Wm. McGrath, charged with burglary, came up in the circuit court yesterday. This fellow has been a terror to the residents of the southwestern portion of the city for some time from his bad conduct, and has been more than once sent to jail for indecent behavior. When the charge of burglary was made against him it was hoped that it might be proven and the city rid of a fellow who is certainly an imbecile or a lunatic. The court appointed F. K. Strode to defend him, and he zealously, wishing to do his whole duty by his client, devoted considerable attention to the case. Finding that McGrath had been in the employ of Capt. Sloan of the Alta house, Vancouver, Strode wrote to him concerning the fix his client was in and asking that Sloan would come over to the trial and do what he could for him. Sloan accordingly came over and also brought another man, and both of them swore that on the date on which the burglary was alleged to have been committed McGrath was at work for Sloan. The prisoner also swore to the same, and as there were only two sides to swear in regard to the burglary, the preponderance of testimony was in favor of the prisoner and he was discharged. This circumstance recalls an anecdote told of a worthy representing the British government once, during a war with France, fitted up a condemned sloop of war, and placed a crew on board. The captain was ordered to carry some important dispatches to an admiral at a distant station. So important were these dispatches that should he be captured by an enemy's cruiser. On his passage a French brig of war bore down upon the old sloop. The captain was game, and determined not to surrender without a struggle. So well did he and his crew fight that they captured the French vessel, and then carried their dispatches in triumph to their destination. The admiral, when he opened them, remarked, "You have done your duty too well." The dispatches were bogus, and intended to fall into the hands of the enemy to mislead them.

TROTTING RACE WON BY "BILLIE REED."—A fair crowd gathered at City View park yesterday afternoon to witness the trotting contest for a purse of $100. The slight rain of the previous day had placed the track in fine condition and a good time was predicted. Of the five entries made only three horses came to the score, Kittie Lynn, Kate Chitwood and Billie Reed. The latter won the pole, Kittie Lynn the outside and Chitwood the middle. The first heat was won by Billie Reed, Chitwood second. Time, 2:48½. Pools on this heat sold: Reed $6, Chitwood $5, Lynn $3. In the second heat pools sold about as follows: Reed $5, Chitwood $3, Lynn $1.50. Reed won again, with Chitwood second. Time, 2:48. Outsiders in interest were manifested on the third heat, and the pool of $58 was sold as follows: Reed $40, Chitwood $12, Lynn $6. The horses got away in fine shape, and Reed at once went to the front, being closely pressed by Chitwood. Lynn broke badly at the first turn, falling far behind. Chitwood broke near the first quarter, also falling to the rear, and leaving a long stretch of daylight between her and the horse. Kittie Lynn recovered near the last quarter pole, and passed Chitwood, but Reed had the race insured and won as he liked, notwithstanding he broke badly while coming down the home stretch. Time, 2:45. This ended the race, Reed having won three straight heats. The steamer City of Salem carried the crowd to the grounds, taking passengers hourly from the foot of Taylor street.

ABOUT SNAKES.—No side-shows need apply in this town, as free museums have of late become quite the style. Plummer & Byerly are now devoting the whole of their time to the successful raising of snakes. The black and white tiger reptile in their show window has been made most comfortable by having a miniature bran heap and a bird's nest filled with moss placed in his glass cage. This snake is also getting a new skin, the old one gradually peeling off in green flakes, exhibiting a new and slimy coat beneath. The rattlesnake that the adjoining compartment had a mouse for breakfast the other day, and has been feeling much better ever since. A big black beetle now occupies the same cage, and will furnish the next meal for his snakeship. A small boy stood at the window for four hours yesterday patiently waiting to see the snake eat the beetle. The advantages of this free show kind of a way of drawing a crowd is also being tried by Somers, the Yamhill man. He has a glass case and two snakes, and announces his intention of keeping up with any free museum in town, regardless of cost. "Coping" Seline has not yet followed the above example as all his customers are more snakes than they care for already.

WITNESSES ARRIVED.—United States Marshal Kearney returned from southern Oregon last evening with a number of witnesses in the case of Todd, the mail robber. One of these is a man who knew Todd in Montana and was approached by the latter a short time before the robbery and an effort made to induce him to join in the enterprise. Another of the witnesses will testify to the fact that Todd purchased a shot gun in Eugene. The man who robbed the stage was armed with a shot gun. A shot gun was found concealed near the scene of the robbery and will be forthcoming. If it can be proven that this is the same gun bought by Todd it will be pretty good evidence against him. Several other witnesses will contribute testimony which is is deemed certain will securely fasten the crime upon Todd. He will have an examination to-day.

THE PARAGON BY FATHER THOMAS N. DRAPER [illegible] who a few days ago narrowly escaped serving a term in the penitentiary for having exhibited a paper around the streets of this city bearing a signature that the owner of the name never wrote, and for having obtained money by means thereof. Not very long ago this same youth was familiarly known throughout the state as "the boy orator," and electrified audiences in the backwoods towns by his glowing eloquence. He also claimed to have a thorough knowledge of the law and so precocious was he considered that at one time there actually was an attempt made to have a bill put through the legislature declaring him of age, so that he might be admitted to the bar. His last escapade shows that he was by far too precocious.

YESTERDAY'S WEATHER.—About 1 o'clock yesterday morning, a thunder storm passed over this section. Loud peals of thunder, accompanied by lightning, (vivid, of course) were heard till about 4 o'clock this morning when a smart shower of rain fell, lasting only a short time, however. Quite a heavy shower fell at Lafayette about the same time. When the carpenters sallied forth to their day's work, no traces of the rain were visible, the dust and smoke reigning supreme. The following truthful "Aphorisms from the Quarters," which are copied from Scribner, are appropriate to this kind of weather: "Cryin' the weather is mighty poor farmin'." "De preacher need beg mo' grace when he won't pray fo' rain till de wind git right."

MAKING FOR THE SEASHORE.—In spite of the great number of people who have already gone to the seaside and returned, sated with enjoyment, a careful observer asserts that the exodus has but just commenced. Every steamer that leaves down the river, whether it be fast or a slow boat, carries pleasure seekers by the dozen, and their numbers are constantly increasing. Red flannel, heavy clothing, blue shirts, sou'-wester hats, fishing tackle and bathing suits are more in demand than at any time before, since Portland has been a city. The bathing suits are all gone, every store in town yesterday having been ransacked in vain for one by a man who had suddenly made up a mind to go to Ilwaco.

SURGICAL ART.—The difficult operation of tying the carotid artery was performed upon a patient at St. Vincent's hospital on Wednesday by Dr. Wells, assisted by Dr. Saylor. The patient some time since received a gunshot wound in the neck which finally caused aneurism of the carotid artery. The operation performed was the last resort and the only means of saving the patient's life. His condition yesterday was favorable and his early recovery is hoped for. These physicians will next be trying their hands at tying the arch of the aorta.

HAY PROSPECTS.—A large quantity of wild oat hay from North Yamhill was shipped yesterday for Westport by Everding & Farrell. It is valued at about $21 per ton. It is the general opinion that there will be a decline in the price of hay soon. The crop on the Columbia bottoms was very good this year and much grain was also cut for hay. Owing to the completion of the Northern Pacific there will be no demand for hay from that quarter. The quantity used on that road last season was about 5000 tons.

SOMEBODY'S CARELESSNESS.—The temporary sidewalk in front of the building being erected at the corner of Alder and Fourth streets is a very unsafe affair, and no barricades are erected to prevent people from passing that way. About 1 o'clock yesterday morning a gentleman passing along the loose planks there fell off into the excavation below, a distance of twelve feet. Fortunately he was not seriously injured, but he was unable to get out until some passers by pulled him out.

HUNTING A BROTHER.—H. A. Smith of Dayton, W. T., a reader of the WEEKLY OREGONIAN, writes to us in the hope of learning the present whereabouts of his brother, Albert Marvin Smith. In reading the account of the camp meeting at Ocean park, written by our special correspondent, he saw the name, A. M. Smith, as being that of one of the persons in attendance there, and wishes the last named person to let him know whether or not he is the brother sought.

DR. MARVIN IN VICTORIA.—St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Victoria, was filled to its utmost Sunday evening to hear Rev. D. Marvin, of Portland, who took for his subject "The Moral and Spiritual Value of the Cross." In the afternoon he addressed a gathering of Sunday school scholars, and was very gracefully introduced by Rev. Mr. Stephen, of Victoria. He has partly promised to preach in the First Presbyterian church next Sunday.

CRITTENDEN'S LAW BOOKS.—Among a large lot of law books lately purchased by U. S. District Attorney Watson, are a number which were once the property of A. P. Crittenden, who was shot by Laura Fair. His autograph is on the cover of each. The sight of it will be a warning to all who use the books to keep in the straight and narrow path.

THE GAMBLER HOMICIDE.

Rev. Dr. Lindsley Preaches the Funeral Sermon in His Own Church.

MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED "GREEKS" ATTEND.

Preliminary Examination of Acock in the Police Court—Endeavoring to Make out that the Crime was Justifiable Homicide.

The funeral of James Morey, the gambler, killed by William Acock on Tuesday night, took place at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the First Presbyterian church, at the corner of Washington and Third streets. The coffin, containing the remains, was placed in front of the pulpit and was profusely decorated with floral tributes from his friends. The grief-stricken wife of the dead gambler was present, and a few other women and a large representation of the fraternity of which he was a prominent member.

At the request of friends of the deceased the services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Lindsley.

DR. LINDSLEY'S ADDRESS.

After prayers and reading the scriptures, Dr. Lindsley said:

There lies a man who lost his life by the hand of violence. The degree of guilt which attaches to the man that killed him I will not discuss. The courts have that in charge. Let the jury decide according to the facts, and in the fear of God. Nor will I discuss the dead man's business. This is not the occasion for it. Men of the same craft are present, who come not to be lectured but to express their sympathy. If I were to describe at length how immoral their business is, what its surroundings are and what a sad end it leads to, they might say that I was playing a sharp trick upon them, without giving them a chance to play back. I shall take no such advantage of any man.

For there is another ground which we all occupy together. I stand in the midst of you, as fellow men. I speak for you as sons of the same family, having the same almighty God as our father, the maker of angels and of men! The words I speak are heart-throbs. They express feelings which we all entertain. May God lead us to the same views touching life's duties and life's end. In all civilized countries a high value is set on human life. A man's life is the most precious thing about him. As a good citizen, in time of peace or war, he adds to the strength and prosperity of his country. He sustains a family, sends his children to school, pays taxes for the support of government and lives to save something for his country to be proud of.

There are possibilities in every man's life. Death ends it all. If it be a death by violence, the people inquire into it through their officers and courts that the cause of it may be known and the guilty punished, if it be caused by crime. In this inquisition the law does not examine into the dead man's reputation or ask whether he is rich or poor, high or low, learned or ignorant. The coroner's jury demands to know how the victim of a violent death came to his end, because he is a man and because his life was priceless to him.

This is the verdict of all mankind, excepting human brutes and barbarians. The value of life is an instinct, enlarged by reason, protected by civilization and made sacred by Christianity that stretches a hand down to the feeblest and throws a shield over the child unborn. God planted the instinct and presided at the first coroner's inquest. It is written in the book of Genesis, chapter 4, verses 9, 10, 11: "And the Lord said unto Cain, 'Where is Abel thy brother?' And he said, 'I know not; am I my brother's keeper?' And he said, 'What hast thou done? The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground. And now art thou cursed from the earth which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand.'" Who knows better than the inventor what the value of his invention is? Who knows, as God does, the value of human life? What has he done to show it? It is written that God made us after His image, and fitted up an abode of beauty and bliss for our first parents; and when sin had smitten them with its dreadful curse, God did not leave the race to perish, but sent His Son, Jesus Christ, to redeem us. He showed his valuation of human life, by offering up his life to redeem ours. He being God and also man, paid down a ransom of infinite value for us, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but should have everlasting life. The speaker quoted the words of one who said he was the "chief of sinners," but he was sure of salvation, for it was a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners and to endow them with eternal life. Let no man neglect it! Let no man throw his life away by continuing in his sins and evil courses.

The speaker closed by saying that there were men in his church whom he prized highly as Christian brothers who forsook the profession which the men before him were following, and who were now proving the true value of human life by serving God and preparing for the life to come.

At the conclusion of the services the coffin was replaced in the hearse and the funeral cortege took up the line of march for Lone Fir cemetery.

The Prisoner's Examination.

While the dead body of "Jimmie" Morey was moving slowly down the street at the head of the cortege of twenty or thirty carriages, containing well known gamblers and sporting men, his slayer, William Acock, was brought before the bar of the police court for a preliminary examination. The court room was crowded, the usual number of roughs and hard characters who daily attend, having remained over in anticipation of a greater treat. These were augmented by the gamblers and their adherents, who filled every hole and corner in the room. The witnesses, of which there were several, both for the prosecution and the defense, were not allowed to listen to each other's testimony, and were kept apart in the judge's private office and in the police waiting room. The evidence taken before the court was in brief as follows:

F. D. GARDNER

Sworn, testified: Am a physician and surgeon; knew James Morey since 1878; saw him last alive in the faro room in rear of Fahr's saloon; was standing in Elite theater; heard noise like bursting of a paper bag; stepped outside; several persons with me; went down to Sud Waterman's saloon door, where a man told me I had better go up to the corner; followed two men; went in, passing John Bird at the door; Morey lay on floor, his head to the door, hands crossed on breast, where someone had placed them; put head to breast but felt no heart beats; opened his shirt; placed head to his breast again and felt two pulsations; saw his face quiver; I then said the man was dead; he had wound in top of head which looked like gunshot wound; this was between 11 and 12 o'clock Tuesday night.

Cross-examination—Saw three or four men in room; may have been others; Morey was straightened out before I got there.

FRED BOND

Sworn, testified: Knew Morey for five or six years past; have known Acock longer; was present at the difficulty Tuesday night; was standing by a table; Morey and the dealer, Harry, had dispute about money; Morey says "$25 goes on high card;" the dealer turned to Acock asking "does it go?" Acock replied "You're the dealer;" dealer again asked the question receiving like answer; Morey got $25 in checks from a man by his side, saying "nobody ever disputed his word in 30 years; words then passed and Acock drew pistol while Morey was going around table; he was in liquor; stumbled over chairs and fell against one; while in a sort of reclining position Acock shot; Acock was standing up on platform, both got up about same time. Riggs and another man were near by. Bill Atkinson tried to take the pistol from Acock; Morey had no pistol in his hand; had nothing in his hands. Cross-examined—Never worked in the Gratton's place; never got pay from him at any time.

GUS BRANDT

Sworn, testified: Reside corner Second and D streets; lived here nearly three years; work 'longshore and fishing during season; came up Monday night; knew Morey by sight, also Acock; saw the row; went in room about three minutes before; two tables in room, which was crowded; went to table next to one Acock was by; stood and looked on; all at once there was a big rush; Acock was in his chair, revolver in hand; he fired one shot; could not see where the ball went or who, if any one, was hurt; waited until passageway was clear and went out; did not see Morey that night; heard one shot. Acock was standing on the platform.

DR. SAYLOR.

Sworn, testified: Am a physician and surgeon of fourteen years' practice; was called to coroner's office Wednesday to make post-mortem examination of body of a man shot, said to be that of James Morey; death was caused by bullet wound in head; recognize bullet shown.

WM. ATKINSON,

Sworn, testified: Know Acock and knew Morey; was present at difficulty Tuesday night about 11:30; was sitting about fifteen feet from Acock's table; heard no conversation; saw Morey scuffling and leaving table. Acock said "Get away and stay away;" there was a man in front of Acock; Morey rushed up and Acock fired. Saw Morey fall and saw him afterward on the floor. After the shooting I grabbed Acock and took him out of the room; he said, his pistol on the bar and said, "I'll go and give myself up." I then went back into the room.

Cross-examination: Morey continued to advance after Acock told him to keep away.

JOHN RIGGS.

Sworn, testified: Am a farmer; have known Acock and Morey about four years; saw the difficulty Tuesday night; went into the room about fifteen minutes prior to the shooting; the game was exciting as lots of money was on the table; one man was noisy, being loser; another deal was made and Morey, the noisy man, lost; he began abusing dealer, pressed limits and got broke; shut off his mouth a good deal; put up marker and lost; he then said: $25 more goes; dealer asked Acock, "How's that?" and Acock replied, "You are dealing." This dialogue was repeated; dealer says, "It don't go," when Morey abused him roundly; a man sitting next to Morey had a lot of checks; Morey reached over, took some and paid his loss; looked up at Acock and said, "You can have all you want;" then rushed at him; had hand behind him; somebody gave me blows on back and side, tearing my coat; guess Morey did it; at this time Morey was shot; did not see shooting but saw pistol in Acock's hand; when Morey made vile remarks to Acock the latter replied in the same way once; when Morey rushed up Acock pulled the pistol.

Cross-examination—Game here Saturday; reside eleven miles from The Dalles; Morey was in good humor until he began losing; the platform is 13½ inches in height, and is in a corner of the room; Morey put hand to hip pocket and advanced; Acock had no good opportunity to get away, room being crowded; everything was done in an instant; could see nothing in Morey's hand; could not, had anything been there; was standing by Acock's side, to his right. Morey was behind me; don't see how Acock could have got away; good many men in room; Acock said nothing; Morey said he would put his gun into the dealer's ear, and called him vile names; kept up abuse for about ten minutes.

Re-direct—Acock did not try to get away; both men were sitting; both got up, Morey an instant before Acock.

JOSEPH PARKER

Sworn, testified: Am a gambler; lived here two years; know Acock and knew Morey; was in the room; saw Morey and friend playing heavily. (Witness related about the same conversation and circumstances as did Riggs). Heard shot as I was leaving the room; left when I saw a muss was coming.

Cross-examination—As Morey advanced Acock arose; saw no motion of Morey toward his hip pocket; Harry Levy was dealing.

JACK BURKHOLTZ

Sworn, testified: Started out of the room when first heard words; thought there would be a row; some one made remark about tin-horn gamblers; I was not in room when shot was fired, but was in soon; several came out at this time; did not tell Hudson I was in room or saw shooting.

H. M. HUDSON

Sworn, testified: Know Burkholtz; he told me last night he was there and saw the shooting.

E. COOKE

Sworn, testified: Am coroner; recognize pistol as one given me by captain of police; Dr. Saylor gave me the ball; he made post-mortem examination.

ADJOURNED TILL TO-MORROW.

Other witnesses for the prosecution were called, but failed to appear. By consent of both sides the examination was continued until 9 A. M. to-morrow.

An effort will be made upon the part of the defense—and a strong one, too—to prove that the killing was an act of justifiable homicide. But it is to be hoped that this man Acock, who has on more than one occasion exhibited his readiness to use a pistol, will meet with more commensurate punishment for this crime. This thing of shooting a man in his tracks simply because he is alleged to have put his hand behind him, should be discouraged. Nothing less than a term in the penitentiary should be the penalty for carrying such a murderous weapon as that with which Acock was armed. Forty-five calibre self-cocking pistols might be proper in the Apache country, but should not be tolerated in a city as orderly as Portland. Of course every effort and artifice will be used by Acock's friends to shield him from merited punishment. Although no pistol was found on the murdered man, there will be plenty of witnesses to prove that they saw one in his hand. Probably if there were necessary men among his associates could be found to testify that Morey fired the fatal shot instead of Acock.

James Barry, the efficient police detective, who was forced to go to the hospital some time ago on account of erysipelas, is again able to be out of doors, but will not report for duty for several days yet.

Hon. Elisha Woods of Forest Grove visited Portland yesterday. Mr. Woods is one of the pioneers of Oregon, having arrived at Oregon City thirty-six years ago. He has during this long period resided chiefly in Yamhill and Columbia counties, and is well known to the early settlers of the former section. Though 75 years of age he is hale and active and delights in reciting the early history of pioneer Oregon, with which he was identified. He is the father of Ex-Governor George L. Woods, now of San Jose, Cal.

WIFE BEATER CONVICTED.—James F. Boyle, who so cruelly beat and kicked his wife about the head and shoulders several days ago, was brought up in the state circuit court yesterday for trial upon a charge of assault with intent to kill. It was a most singular trial. The brute, Boyle, who disgraced the name of man, sat stolidly throughout the whole, while several witnesses told of the enormous cruelties which he had practiced upon his wife. A little twelve year old son of this ill-mated pair was put upon the stand and in a most truthful, pitiful way, as if he could not understand what it was all about, told how "papa kicked mamma." Then came Mrs. Boyle upon the stand—and strange to say, in defense of the brute who had so nearly taken her life ever since the crime has been committed she has besieged the officers of the law and the district attorney with supplications that they would release her "poor husband, who never meant to do any wrong." On the witness stand she swore positively again that her husband never kicked her, never beat her, never touched her even, and was always to her one of the best and kindest of men. When asked upon cross-examination how she accounted for the bruises upon her face, neck and head she swore that she received them by falling against a red-hot stove, and that reason that they were upon both sides was because she rolled over. In spite of this testimony the jury found Boyle guilty and he will be sent to the penitentiary, as he so richly deserves. After the trial was over Mrs. Boyle became furious and stormed loudly at what she termed the injustice done her husband. Turning to her little boy she exclaimed: "Get out of this, you devil's brat. Go to the court for your living. After what you have done, don't ever enter my doors again!" "But, mamma," pleaded the little fellow, "I only told what was true." "You ———, why didn't you tell what you told you? Why didn't you say what I told you? Get out now, you ———, I don't ever want to see your face again!"

COMING GRAND SPORTING EVENT.—Much interest is already being manifested among those who take an interest in athletic contests, and among the sporting classes in general, as to the coming grand wrestling contests that are soon to take place between the famous Scotchman, Donald Dinnie, the champion all-around athlete of the world, and that mysterious of all mysterious personages, the powerful "Unknown," who has been discovered somewhere in the backwoods by Manager Steckhan. This latter gentleman maintains a most obstinate silence in regard to the capabilities of his "Unknown," holding himself in readiness at all times, however, to wager any amount that the latter will win the contest. Naturally enough Dinnie is a general favorite, and betting is now running high at $100 to $70 in his favor. The "Unknown" finds many supporters at these odds and at even bets, relying solely upon the judgment of his backers.

DID CLEAN THE STREETS.—Wm. Dunbar and Yan Kee were tried in the police court yesterday on charges of neglecting and refusing to clean the streets in front of their places of business. Proof was furnished by the defendants to show that they had their street cleaned twice per week, but as the work was performed before or after business hours the fact had escaped the notice of Superintendent Sears. As he found the street dirty while on his rounds, he naturally supposed it had not been attended to. The cases were taken under advisement by Judge Moreland.

EXCURSION TO THE SEASIDE.—The swift and commodious steamer Lurline will leave the foot of Morrison street promptly at 6 o'clock to-morrow evening, for Astoria, Seaside landing and Young's river, also connecting with boats for Ilwaco. This will give persons whose families or friends are at the beach an opportunity to spend Sunday with them. The Lurline, on her return trip, leaves Astoria at 5 A. M. on Monday, arriving here at 1 P. M.

STOVES FROM AFAR OFF.—Two car-loads of stoves direct from the foundry at Sing Sing prison, New York, were received here by the last steamer. They are for a firm at Baker City, and were yesterday transferred to the depot of the Columbia river railroad by Holman Bros. It would seem that the greater part of the cost of these stoves should be the cash money for the freight.

WILL LOSE HIS EYE.—The physician in attendance on J. G. Murdoch, whose eye was injured a short time since in an altercation with Charley Dubois, has come to the conclusion that it will be necessary to remove the damaged organ. The operation will be performed to-day. It is a very severe measure, but is deemed best for the safety of the other eye.

NEW HARDWARE HOUSE.

Third street continues to loom up as a business street. The latest addition, a business circle is, to be the new hardware store of R. C. Dale & Co., at No. 131. The members of this firm have been associated with the hardware trade in San Francisco, and more recently in this city with prominent firms. They are gentlemen who have a large share of patronage, through the simple fact that they will always keep a full line of goods, treat their customers uniformly, and sell as low as any house. The stock will consist of the finest hardware, mechanics' tools, etc. The time previous to next Friday (the opening day) will be occupied in fitting up the store and placing the new goods. We wish the new firm success.

For one more month the great sale of bankrupt stock of boots and shoes, corner Fourth and Morrison streets. Wiberg & Hollabaugh have stocked up with new goods, ladies' boots and shoes, slippers, etc., which they are selling off at actual cost to make room for the mammoth stock of fall goods to arrive in the next sixty days. A gang of Chinamen who have been employed at Oswego came down on the City of Salem boat evening, bag and baggage.

The Northern Pacific track reached a point thirty-two miles east of Missoula yesterday. It will soon be long before the stage distance will be reduced to a daylight ride.

Keys to fire alarm box 31, lately erected at the corner of First and Meade streets, will be found at Peter Taylor's, southeast corner of those streets, and at L. C. Scholl's, on the northeast corner.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press of July 16 says "The Northern Pacific yesterday ordered two new passenger coaches for the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company. They were built at [illegible] shop at Chicago.

A contemporary describes a "caber" as "a tapering stick of timber, the shape of which is the frustum of a cone." In reality it is a small telegraph pole, about the size of the one Widow O'Brien wanted in her glass of lemonade. Only this and nothing more.

Religious services will be held upon Sunday in Couch engine house, under the auspices of members of the Calvary Presbyterian church, permission to use the house having been granted by the board of fire commissioners. Sunday school classes will also be formed in the afternoon.

Workmen are employed in cutting away the middle and north roadways to Ainsworth dock to make room for the incline, by which the cars from the east side are to reach the west side depot. The handsome oak trees near the upper roadway have also disappeared before the march of improvement.

MAN KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

A young man, by the name of Roberts, was instantly killed by lightning near Eugene, in southern Oregon, on Wednesday morning. He was employed by his uncle at the time of his death and was returning from the meadow, where the hands were engaged from an early hour in putting up the hay to protect it from the threatening thunderstorm. He carried his hay-fork across his shoulders, the sharp tines of which acted as a conductor and drew the electricity from the surcharged atmosphere. The unfortunate man, of course, had no previous warning, and the first intimation his companions had of what had happened was the appearance, for an instant only, of a bright ball of fire on the end of the fork. The next moment the man sank to the ground, and, on being approached, was discovered to be stone dead. His face was blackened from congestion, but beside this nothing was seen that would indicate a violent death. The young man was without family and his remains were removed by the coroner of the county to Eugene where an inquest was held. This is the second instance of death by a stroke of lightning—the phenomenal nature of which, never failed to excite a general interest—that has occurred in Oregon within the knowledge of the "oldest inhabitant."

THE WRECKER WHITELAW.

Description of a Steam Schooner Built Expressly for the Purpose of Saving Property—How the Crew Work.

Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

The wrecking steam schooner Whitelaw arrived in this port last Saturday evening, and on Sunday she was visited by something like 600 of our people. The boat was built and is now run by Mr. T. P. H. Whitelaw. She was launched last November, and every particular of machinery necessary for her occupation has been secured. Captain Bay and the diver, Mr. Wallace, are the only noted ones of the crew, the others being known by general terms as wreckers. The diver's suit is one of the latest styles, and is constructed something as follows: The dress is made of material resembling oil canvas, but is lined with rubber. This is a complete covering for body from the neck to the feet. A tight fitting wrist band obviates the necessity of wearing gloves. There is a pair of shoes with leaden soles, weighing 15 pounds each. A belt of shot weighing 60 pounds is worn. The brass helmet is constructed with an air pump, and there is a little sleeve where the surplus air escapes. Ten fathoms of water is the greatest depth in which divers can work comfortably. In greater depths much care is necessary lest the pressure may cause the diver's death.

The hull of the boat is divided into aft, the cabin, next the engine room, then the hold and the coal bunkers, holding twenty-six tons of coal. Then in the bow are the steam pumps, and in the extreme bow is the cabin and sleeping apartments of the men. The only house consists of sheet iron frames around the boilers and engines. The machinery and lighting apparatus are something wonderful. They have the twenty hydraulic "jacks," used to raise those large buildings in San Francisco at the time of the widening of Dupont street. There is about ninety fathoms of very heavy anchor chains. There are three hydraulic pumps—one weighing about five tons, which sends a stream about one foot in diameter. A great many other machines, as heavy rigging and tackle, blocks are aboard, besides the machinery left at Port Discovery. Mr. Whitelaw has purchased the scuttled Wa[illegible] and will soon raise her by sinking pontoons, lashing them to the ship, and then pumping the water out, when the vacuum thus formed will raise the boat bodily, and enable the workmen to board her. The Mississippi will probably be the first one raised, and the method of proceeding is about as follows: Her bow will be raised by the hydraulics, then with the heavy tackle on the shore she will be hauled up in the shallow water, where the diver can work. The diver will then pass under with a hose, forcing a passage through the sand. Then he will pass a small line through, and increase the size of line until they can pass the large chain under. They will probably pass about ten of these chains through, and with piling and hydraulicing will raise her bodily. The Wawa is the more difficult boat to raise, but the raising of the sunken Mississippi will be a spectacle not often witnessed on the Sound waters.

A GOOD SHOWING.

LENA, Or., July 29, 1883.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Enclosed I send you a sample of wheat raised on bunch-grass land between Butter creek and Willow creek. It averaged twenty-two bushels per acre and was wasted badly in harvesting. The land was plowed about four inches deep, a year ago and grain sowed in the fall. Only forty pounds of seed to the acre was used. If more seed had been used it would have yielded more. The straw was about 3½ feet high. This was land that was considered unfit for anything but stock range until last year. No rain fell after the middle of May. W. H. DOUGLASS.

[The sample of wheat inclosed is about as fine as need be. The berry, though smaller than valley wheat, is plump and bright.]

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

THURSDAY, Aug 2

For our weekly resume there is little of any importance to include. General trade, while quiet, is quite satisfactory for the time. We note a continued good request for goods to go into the eastern section, while the valley sends light orders. Harvesting is general, while in many parts threshing is under way. Notwithstanding advices from the eastern section received this week, we can see no good reason for adding to our previous figures of 200 000 tons for export. We are inclined to believe that a too low estimate has been allowed for home consumption and seed. In the eastern section many thousand acres of new ground will be seeded. Another fact not to be lost sight of is the of an increase in milling. As it takes three tons of wheat to produce two tons of flour, it is easily seen that there is to be a lessened number of tons to export. Last season though the falling off in wheat exports was less than 1 894,000 centals wheat, the flour exports fell off but 184,100 barrels or 552,300 centals in wheat. It will thus be seen that our flour export is yearly increasing. This is a gratifying fact. It keeps the millstuff at home requires less tonnage and is considered profitable.

The rain of Wednesday was of little consequence. It would be difficult to say what would be the effect of a few days rain just at this time. In many fields the wheat is hardly ripe for cutting, while in others the kernel is full and healthy. New wheat has been received here from Polk county and from the eastern section, shipments from the last named being regular yet small.

Freights show no quotable change, but it would be an extremely difficult matter for owners to duplicate last charters. The arrival of three vessels, two under charter, has reminded shippers that they have something to live for after all. None of these are understood to be for August loading. At San Francisco the market is dull, rates showing no change, but there is no spot business on which to base quotations.

TONNAGE STATEMENT

As yet there is no quotation for new wheat, the late condition of the foreign market not giving shippers much cheer. Possibly before another week closes a value may be established. Receipts for seven days have been 9051 centals.

Flour quiet with values only fair, steady. Receipts and supply both light. The lower river demand is lessening, and Puget Sound is about the only outside market. Receipts for seven days were 2228 barrels, exports to San Francisco 450 barrels.

The Northwestern Miller, Minneapolis, July 27th, says: A little better feeling is noted in the milling business this week, an increased demand and more confidence being developed. Two more mills are running in this city than a week ago and the production is materially augmented. On Tuesday there were sixteen mills in operation and the output will average fully 12,000 barrels per day, against 9500 barrels a week ago. In looking up last year's business, we find that at the corresponding time to the present, seventeen mills were running, producing 8000 barrels per day. During both the previous and subsequent weeks, seventeen mills were in operation, and the production was 9900 barrels.

Oats in much better supply both as regards old Oregon and new California. Jobbers are bidding down as California can now be laid down here at 60@62 ½c per bushel. For new Oregon 65c was bid, but the result is not yet known. Much has been said regarding our crops, some who seem to take an unwarranted view of the situation going so far as to say that less than half an average yield would result and that values of ten days ago must rule another twelve-month. Such statements cannot, and the writers know could not, be based on intelligent data. A product is never worth more than can be obtained for it and when local supply sources fail, outside sections will step in if any margin exists. If Oregon does not have half a crop, which is not at all probable and we cannot draw from California, then values could be kept up. At the risk of being wildly accused of an attempt at crying down prices, we present a few influences bearing upon the oat market. California is the largest barley and oat crop ever harvested. Oregon will have almost as much as last year. Eastern Oregon and Washington, which last season drew heavily on this market, has almost if not quite enough oats and barley for home uses. A much less amount will be required by railway construction. Puget Sound has a good crop and freight rates will be low than last year. How oats can be worth six bits a bushel here in the face of this is not quite clear at this time. Good prices bring prosperity to the country, even if consumers reside in the country that secure good prices, and prosperity is just what we like to see, yet it cannot be brought about by wild writing. Receipts past seven days have been 1905 centals, home product.

Millstuff firm in all lines. Local receipts light, being but 500 centals for seven days. California sent us by last steamer 3000 sacks feed.

Hay in much better supply, and some sells for $15 @16 for timothy. Baled is coming up from Lewis and Cowlitz rivers in increasing quantities. Values have gone down to about consumers ideas and receipts from California and the Sound are shut off.

Wool quiet but steady with transactions at our quotations. Eastern Oregon receipts are fast reaching their end. Valley does not come forward as fast as expected, but this is due to the quiet market. Receipts for the week, 149 153 pounds.

Hides dull with large receipts, though the last week has not been so noticeable in the latter respect, there being 10,347 pounds received.

Butter in very light supply from local sources and values are firm.

Eggs steady with receipts about equal to demand. At this time last year values were 30c with receipts but little more than half those now. This shows that the supply has not kept pace with the demand.

Chickens in light receipt but high prices have lessened the demand.

Green apples selling at about $1 50 for Oregon.

California fruits come to hand in such poor condition that jobbers propose to order less. For two steamers the peaches had to be culled out at a loss. Watermelons sell at 50@75c each.

Cured meats continue firm for choice cuts.

Receipts past 24 hours have been 462 centals wheat, 413 bbls flour, 208 ctls oats, 20 ctls millstuff, 1,148 lbs wool, 44 lbs hides, 5 bxs butter, 55 bxs eggs, 100 bbls lime, 23 bxs fruit. Also 1068 ctls wheat, 1,178 lbs wool from the eastern section.

GOOD NEWS FROM TEXAS

Mr Thomas A Howard of Honey Grove, Fannin county, Texas, under date of April 6 1883, writes as follows:

I have been suffering during several years from severe illness and a general breaking down of my physical system and have tried the treatment and prescriptions of many doctors far and near and traveled to the Hot Springs and other mineral springs famous for their remedial qualities, drinking the waters and bathing systematically in their healing baths, but all to no avail. I was finally told by doctors that my ailment was of a kidney character, the result of kidney disease of a dangerous character. They could give me nothing to cure me. During the past two years my sufferings at times were dreadful and I had the most intolerable pains in the regions about the kidneys; the paroxysms at night were such that it was impossible for me to sleep. Hunt's Remedy was recommended and I was persuaded to try Hunt's Remedy. Before I had used half a bottle my great sufferings and paroxysms of pain were entirely relieved and I could sleep better and longer than I had in two years, and although I am now on my third bottle only, my improvement is very remarkable, and I regret that I did not know of the wonderful powers of Hunt's Remedy before, as it would have saved me years of suffering. I heartily recommend it to all afflicted with any kidney disease or disease of the urinary organs.

"HIT MY CASE EXACTLY."

Please allow me to speak in the highest terms of Hunt's Remedy, for it hit my case exactly. I had kidney and urinary trouble pretty bad. I was recommended Hunt's Remedy. I took one teaspoonful as directed. I felt a decided change at the first dose. I took two bottles, and have felt like a new man ever since. Please receive the sincere thanks of myself for the benefits which I bought it, by trying found only in Hunt's Remedy.

I will cheerfully give this same information of Hunt's Remedy to any one who wishes it, and add enough.

A public trial of over thirty years' duration in every section of our country of UDOLPHO WOLFE'S SCHNAPPS, its unsolicited indorsement by the medical faculty, and a sale unequaled by any other alcoholic distillation have insured for it the reputation for salubrity claimed for it. Swift's Specific has been the means of bringing health and happiness to thousands who were pronounced incurable of Blood and Skin Diseases.

HEAR THE WITNESSES!

Saved from a Terrible Death.

Up to May last I had spent a fortune and five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. I suffered excruciatingly and all my friends had advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at S.S.S. as a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores began to discharge freely and the swelling to abate. When I had used about two dozen bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I continued until I had used about twelve bottles, and THERE IS NOT A SYMPTOM OF THE DISEASE REMAINING and I feel as well as ever. I have gained twenty-five pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many and in every instance with complete success. I believe that S.S.S. has saved me from a horrible death.

C H FRILEY, Quincy Ill

I am sure that Swift's Specific saved my life. I was terribly poisoned with malaria, and was given up to die. Swift's Specific relieved me promptly and entirely. I think it is the greatest remedy of the age.
